TECHNOLOGY-ASSISTED HARMFUL SEXUAL BEHAVIOURS – PRACTICE GUIDANCE TRAINING

29/30 October 2018

PARTICIPANTS: Trained Social Workers, YOS and specialist providers working in the field of child protection

PRICE: £ 270 per delegate

VENUE: Luther King House, Fallowfield, Manchester

Aims and Objectives

Aim

Understanding how technology may facilitate sexual offending among adolescents poses practitioners with many unique challenges. The Technology-Assisted Harmful Sexual Behaviour practice guidance*, which accompanies this training is intended to help practitioners better formulate judgments about risks in the context of concerns arising from an adolescent's technology-assisted harmful sexual behaviours.

The practice guidance is drawn from research findings and current practice knowledge. Importantly, it will provide practitioners with knowledge of the impact this form of child sexual abuse has on victims.

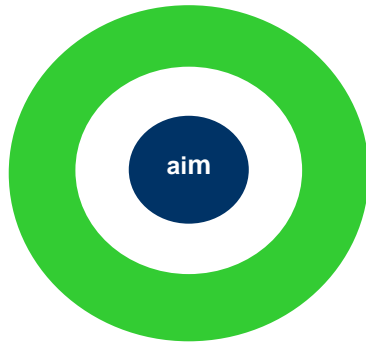

Learning Outcomes

By the end of the course participants will:

- Have an understanding of current research findings regarding technology assisted child sexual abuse
- Know how to collect and collate relevant information regarding TA-HSB
- Learn how to develop a case formulation
- Be confident in establishing safety plans

COURSE TIMINGS: 9.30 - 4.00

) not included in price of training*

AIM INTERVENTIONS FOR ADOLESCENTS

31 October/1 November 2018

PARTICIPANTS: Social workers, YOT workers, Children's charities representatives, health professionals, education staff and others working in the field of child protection
Delegates must have good knowledge base of AIM2 assessments to do this course.

PRICE: £ 270 per delegate

VENUE: Luther King House, Fallowfield, Manchester

Aim:

The intervention course is to address how workers can structure individual bespoke intervention packages for young people based on the assessment outcomes, recognising that the intervention will be unique to each individual young person. It is necessary to recognise the systems around the young person and the very important roles that they play.

Objectives:

- To explore both the personal and professional attitudes, beliefs and values which underpin this work
- To look at developing a bespoke intervention package using an AIM 2 assessment case study
- To identify the need for openness and transparency with all the systems around the young person
- To develop confidence in recognising the areas of work within the domains that need addressing and those that may not
- Recognising how attachments styles will impact on how the young person interacts within the process and how best, we as workers can manage this
- Tapping into our creativity – how we as workers can make this work interesting and exciting for the young people that we work with.
