Dear Year 6 of 2025,

Next week you will be taking your SATs tests in Reading, Grammar, Spelling and Maths. We know that some of you may be feeling a little anxious, and so we wanted to take this moment to tell you how proud we are of the way you have worked: over the last eight months in Year 6, you have made great progress and shown us just how brilliant you can be.

But let's be clear — SATs do not define you. These tests cannot measure everything that makes you special. They don't see your creativity, your musical and artistic talents, your athletic skills, your kindness, or your generosity. They don't know about the wonderful things you do at Farfield and beyond — your cooking and gardening talents, your unwavering loyalty, or your brilliant imagination. Some of you are incredible big - and little - brothers and sisters; some of you can cheer up your friends with silly jokes and hugs; all of you have unique and special talents which make you - YOU.

Always remember, SATs are just one week of your journey — a chance to show how much you have learned and grown. No matter the outcome, you are already a success in our eyes.

So, as you step into this week, take a deep breath, do your best, and know that we are all so proud of who you are.

You are a Farfield child. You are unique. You are amazing.

Good luck, and always remember this:

"You're off to great places! Today is your day! Your mountain is waiting, so get on your way!"
— Dr. Seuss

With all our best wishes,

Mrs Dobkin and Miss Jones
