Calling all scientists at Farsley Farfield! We are searching for our next

SCIENCE SUPERSTARS

There has been some amazing science work happening across the school this year, carried out by children who have taken a real interest in exploring the world through science. Now we would like to give them the chance to show off their fantastic skills for the rest of their class (and potentially, the rest of the school)!

The time has come again for our 'Science Superstars' competition and as always, children from Reception to Year 6 are all invited to join in! We have had quite a few fantastic competitions since our relaunch in 2022 and we are certain that this year will be no different!

How do I become the next 'Science Superstar'?

All you need to do is plan an experiment or investigation at home that you can share at school. You will then have to demonstrate your 'Superstar' experiment in front of your class during the week beginning 22nd June. Your teacher will be able to give more information about when your class will be holding auditions when it is closer to the time. Remember that you need to be able to explain the science behind your experiment as well as perform it!

Once all of the children who are taking part have shared their projects, the class will vote for a 'Class Superstar', who will go through to the grand final on Friday 10th July. These 'Class Superstars' will perform their experiments for the school and a panel of judges. There will be some fantastic prizes for our winners, so we'd love for you to get involved if you think you can!

So put your thinking caps on and start planning your fantastic experiments. We can't wait to be amazed by what you come up with!
